

Negative: Summer 2007 Festival Tour

Part 3.

Aitoon Kirkastusjuhlat 7. July 2007

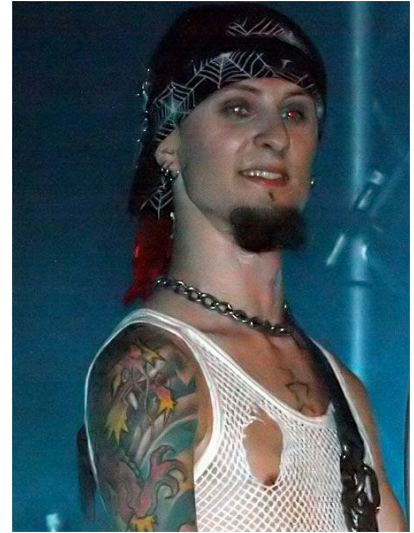

Aitoon kirkastusjuhla attracted some loyal fans as well as those who came to see Negative for the very first time. Even though the staff didn't always seem to know their responsibilities, the band enjoyed good treatment. The artists were given plenty of food and drinks, so everything seemed to be in order.

Some special excitement was floating in the air since the word was that Jonne wasn't feeling well.

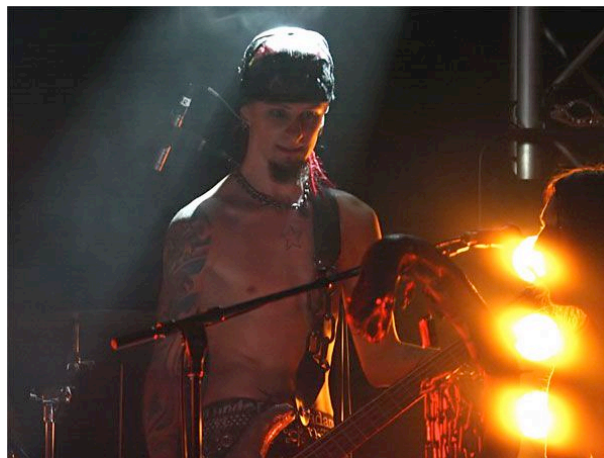

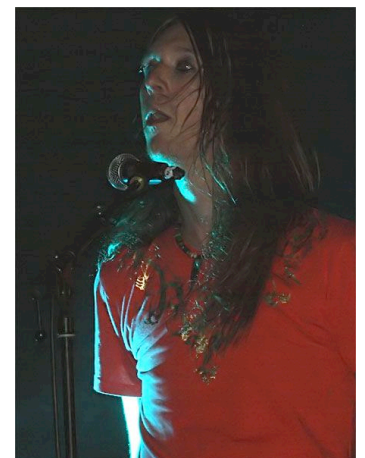

Everyone packed inside of the "barn" where the concert took place and the feeling was surreal when the floor seemed to be moving because of the crowd jumping up and down. Negative's own mixer staff was on a vacation so the sounds were not quite what we are used to hear, but after a couple of songs, everything started to work better and even the band themselves heard what they were playing.

A part of the drum set fell apart all of a sudden during the last moments of the gig and also the festival schedule forced Negative to cut the set a bit short. So the fans never got an encore no matter how hard they tried. No one got roses and the crowd didn't even see the bow.

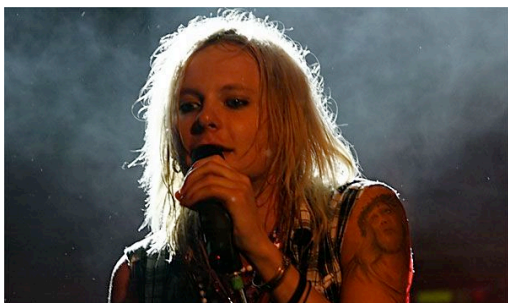

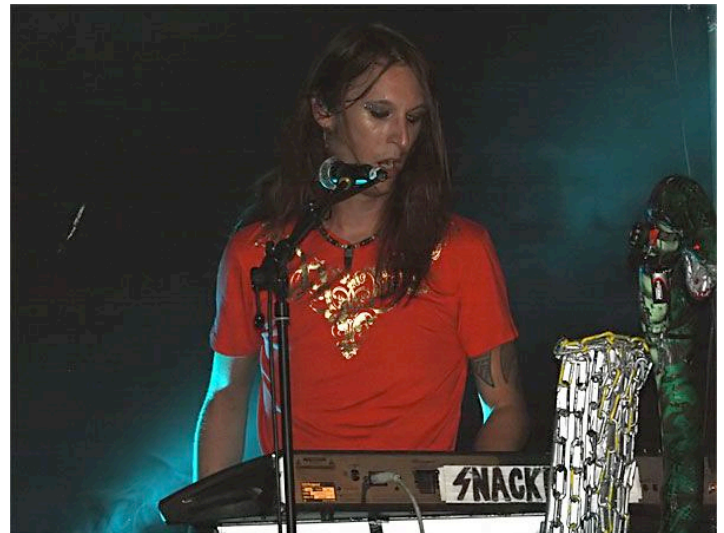

The dissapointed fans waited for the band members to come and give out some autographs, which they did, except for Jonne who really wasn't feeling well.

Setlist:

- LA Feeding Fire*
- My my, Hey hey*
- Frozen to lose*
- Glory of the shame*
- Moment of our love*
- Swans*
- Planet of the sun*
- Never ending*
- Fading yourself*
- Naive*
- Until you're mine*

Pictures: Majju Sulkava

Text: Oona Siltanen

(c) Negative